It has been announced today that Tim Curtis has been appointed Ricardo Energy & Environment managing director – taking over from Robert Bell, who retires following a 40 year career with the company

Commenting on this new appointment which builds on his previous senior managerial positions with the company since 2007, Tim Curtis said: “It is a privilege to be appointed the managing director of Ricardo Energy & Environment. I look forward to working closely with our senior leadership team to grow the company and strengthen our reputation as a global leader in providing highly regarded and innovative solutions for our clients.”

Part of international consultancy and engineering company Ricardo plc, Ricardo Energy & Environment provides technical insight and expertise to help governments, public agencies and businesses solve their environmental challenges. The company’s specialist consultants deliver technical solutions across multiple environmental sectors, including energy and climate change, air quality, sustainable transport, resource efficiency, water, environmental impact and waste management.

“I would like to welcome Tim as the new managing director and thank Robert for his leadership over many years,” added Ricardo plc CEO Dave Shemmans. “Ricardo exists to create solutions to the world’s most pressing technical challenges, whether that’s providing robust scientific insight to identify low carbon opportunities, or engineering technology at the forefront of clean energy generation. Tim brings a depth of experience across the environment and energy arena and I look forward to working more closely with him.”
