Financial Times recognizes Ricardo Energy & Environment as leader in sustainability

Ricardo Energy & Environment, part of global engineering company Ricardo, has been acknowledged as one of the UK's leading management consultants for 2018 by the Financial Times

The Financial Times identified Ricardo Energy & Environment as a company that is recommended for sustainability services based on comments made by clients and peers throughout industry.

The rating reinforces the company's position as a leading consultancy in the environment and sustainability arena.

Tim Curtis, Ricardo Energy & Environment MD, said: "Over the past year we have strengthened our reputation as a leader in delivering innovative sustainability solutions and I am delighted to see this acknowledged by our customers and peers. I would especially like to thank our clients involved in the Financial Times survey and indeed all clients for their continued support and confidence in Ricardo. I look forward to working with them throughout 2018 and beyond to help overcome the world's most pressing environmental challenges and secure the benefits of sustainable and resilient growth."

Ricardo's environmental consulting business boasts a broad client base that includes local and national governments, public sector organisations, water and energy companies, international agencies and major private sector companies.

The company operates a diverse multi-discipline practice structure, including teams working in air quality, climate change, energy, sustainable transport, corporate social responsibility, infrastructure and utilities planning, and scarce resource management.
